ELDERS’ COMMENTS
We continue receiving positive comments from far and near about the cards Tara members send to people. Without question, the personal interest shown is appreciated. It takes a little time and involves some expense, but the lasting good it does cannot be determined. Some faithfully write these notes to people on a regular basis. It is the little things we do that are very significant and meaningful in our Christian walk. This is a good work. Keep it up, and as you bless others, you will be blessed. Writing cards is one of many good things anyone can do. Would James 4:17 not apply?

SERVING JESUS INDIVIDUALLY

"Now you are the body of Christ and members Individually." (I Cor.12:27) Blessings come to us individually as members of His body; likewise, we have individual responsibilities. We find personal responsibility emphasized in the scriptures time and again. No one can do your giving or praying for you; nor can anyone study, visit, teach others, resist temptation, or grow spiritually for you. Serving God by proxy is not a biblical concept.

Most everyone realizes this to be true, yet there is often the temptation to let someone else do it. Some have the "spectator" concept of Christianity. To be personally involved is for the more qualified, or for those who want to become involved. Then, some are like the proverbial Monday morning quarterbacks who know why the game went wrong yesterday. They know why the church is not growing as it should, why the attendance is down, why people leave, etc. But seldom do they ask, "Lord, is it I? What can I do to change it?"

Is it possible to sit on the sidelines so long that you lose interest in the game? Seldom do the players lose interest. Of course, Christianity (discipleship) is far more than a game. It is a new life involving commitment, steadfastness and persistence. Does this congregation need to make improvements in certain areas? Should some things be corrected? By all means, yes! But whose responsibility is it to make the corrections? Everybody's! To the extent that each and every member of the body functions properly, the body will be productive. This is true at work, on the playing field, in the home, and in the church. It is time that we realize the importance of every individual in this congregation, and that every individual realizes his or her importance and be dependable.

Richard
